

Account Management Feature Specification

1. What the Feature Is

Account management allows users to update their personal details and, if they choose, permanently delete their account. All changes are made from the profile page, which is accessible from the navigation bar.

2. What Users Can Change

- Username: users can pick a new username as long as it is not already taken.
- Email address: users can update the email on their account.
- Password: users can set a new password by providing their current password first.

3. Email Change Behaviour

When a user changes their email address, their account is set back to unverified.

They will need to verify the new email address before their account is fully active again.

This ensures that every email address on the system has been confirmed by its owner.

4. Account Deletion

Users can permanently delete their account from the profile page.

Before deletion is confirmed, the user must enter their password.

Deleting an account removes everything associated with it, including the watchlist, watch logs, and any pending verification or reset codes.

This action cannot be undone.

5. User Stories

- Update a username that is no longer wanted.
- Change the email address on the account.
- Set a new password after remembering the current one.
- Permanently close an account and remove all associated data.
- Sign out from the profile page.

6. Business Rules

- Users must be signed in to access the profile page.
- A new username must not already be in use by another account.
- A new email address must not already be registered to another account.
- Changing a password requires the current password to be entered correctly.
- Deleting an account requires password confirmation and removes all data permanently.
